THE Collegiate NATIONALS

The 2008 Collegiate Nationals at Wave House San Diego.

Spring Break Rituals

Easter 1935: The Colgate College men's swimming team travels to sunny Fort Lauderdale, Florida to gain an edge on the competition who are still stuck in the snow. The girls notice and the Spring Break rituals begin. Over the next 70+ years, college kids would compete at everything from swallowing live goldfish to stuffing themselves into telephone booths. By the end of the century, TV networks provided coverage of the current spring rites of passage: teenie bikinis and billions of brain cells lost in a drunken orgy of music, mayhem and bad behavior for all the world to see. College admissions soared.

In the 21st Century, more college kids embrace the healthy, active lifestyle but still need an outlet for their youthful exuberance. CBS

Sports recognized the entertainment value of the next generation of Spring Break competition and invested in extensive coverage of the 2008 Collegiate Nationals: nine events in four sporting strongholds in the western U.S.

CBS host and Olympic freeskier Jonny Moseley kicked off the series on familiar turf, ah, snow, in Keystone, Colorado on March 28-29 with the snowboarding and freeskiing events going off in the kind of extreme conditions west coasters have enjoyed all season. The local Colorado kids ruled the K51 terrain park. Then it was off to Reno on April 10-12 for Boxing and Weightlifting where Army finally won the team boxing title it so badly deserved. The last stop was Boulder, Colorado on May 16-18 for Wakeboarding and Ultimate Frisbee.

But Spring Break has always been about the beach. The main event moved to Wave House San Diego where hundreds of coeds flooded in like a party tsunami to compete in competitive eating, beach volleyball and flowboarding.

Too Much of a Good Thing?

Anyone who's spent any time around college kids knows there is never enough to eat. Well, "Iron" Pete Czerwinski representing McMaster College took out a field of seven seriously hungry competitors in seven minutes, eating about seven gazillion calories of Wave House burgers, fries and hotdogs. To practice for the Wave House eating finals the 22-year-old engineering Grad student and competitive bodybuilder Czerwinski powered a 106-ounce steak in 30 minutes, and 18 peeled bananas in two minutes. After his big win, but even before the Wave House cuties could hand over his $1000 check, Pete was already asking for a drink, and yes, dessert.

Cash Is King, but Mesa Rocks!

Anyone that follows college sports knows USC and San Diego State, and this year even USD's Toreros received national attention with their winning basketball season. But at the 2008 Collegiate Nationals flowboarding event, it was Mesa College that stole the show. Seven schools competed in a unique format that allowed each team to compete together and show off the best they had. A well-rounded team was the key to Mesa's strategy, as any good run racked up the points. Then in the quarters and semis it was the best from each team until only six competitors were left.

Inspired by the level of competition, Wave House threw down over $2000 in cash prior to the finals. The MC's announced the cash prizes and the crowd went nuts! The six finalists went over the top trying out new tricks for their last runs. Tyler McIntyre did huge whirlies, Trevor Kelly busted out his first ever fakie backflip and Andy Gold pulled some huge airs. Jeff Ranta did the biggest carve of the night and some nice inverted 180s after hucking too far off the lip into the flats and almost ending his night. Brian Crecely did a rapid-fire succession of highly technical tricks that wowed the judges, and pulled a front flip on his first-ever attempt. But in the end it was Point Loma's Chris Neubauer who had the poise and confidence to put together the most complete runs. Chris became a fixture at Wave House and even built a half-pipe in his living room to get ready for the event. Climbing out of the competitors' hot tub with a huge smile and steely-eyed look of confidence, Chris proceeded to destroy the 10' FlowBarrel® with a 720 air, three inverted 540s, a rail slide and two switch airs. With his family watching on, the judges were ready to silence the crowd for unsportsmanlike conduct until they understood that it wasn't "boos", but "Newwwb!" "Newwwb!" "Newwwb!" they were chanting. Chris even pulled a strapless 360 air that blew the judges and the crowd away. Not even the Battle of the Bands final featuring A Brief Smile and Mumpsy could overcome the deafening roar of the Point Loma spirit squad.

SCENES FROM THE 2007 FLOWBOARDING CONTEST SEASON

DURING THE SUMMER OF 2007, WAVE LOCH®, FLOWRIDER® AND FLOWBARREL® SHEET WAVES ROARED TO LIFE ACROSS THE COUNTRY AND AROUND THE WORLD, AS HUNDREDS OF THE WORLD'S BEST FLOWBOARDERS MET IN SWIFT COLLISION IN FLOWBOARDING CONTESTS ON THE LOCAL, NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL LEVEL.

THE FOLLOWING IS A SAMPLE OF SOME OF THE BEST EVENTS AND ACTION FROM THE SUMMER OF 2007.

THE FLOWRIDER THUNDERS DOWN UNDER

Dreamworld's Comp Finds Australia's Hottest Flowboarders

Queensland's Gold Coast is home to one of the natural manmade wonders of the waveriding world: The Superbank. This wave was created by a sand-dredging scheme that poured tons of sand between Snapper Rocks and Kirra and created one of the world's most perfect waves.

But Queensland's Gold Coast is also home to the Dreamworld theme park and the WhiteWater World waterpark. Located only 20 minutes from Surfer's Paradise, Dreamworld/WhiteWater World is a paradise where you can find another man-made wonder of the wave world, the FlowRider®. Riding waves is a national passion in Australia, and in 2007, Dreamworld's FlowRider® Zero to Hero competition brought together 40 competitors, including some of Australia's top board sporting professionals. They went head to head on Australia's first stationary wave for a piece of the $18,000 prize booty up for grabs, which included a trip for two to ride Wave House® in San Diego, USA.

First prize included an Xbox 360, an awesome Coke Pack, movie tickets, a $200 Coke Fossil Watch and CDs and was valued at $10K.

Riders entered the Bodyboarding or Stand-up Flowboarding divisions and were required to perform controlled maneuvers with style, execution and creativity to maximize scoring potential. Judges evaluated the rider's flow, the sequences of tricks and the power of the entire run and each run was given a score from one to 10, across five criteria: Execution, Trick Difficulty, Style, Variety/Creativity, Combinations/Run.

The first round of heats attracted over 100 spectators and pitched surf against street and snow. Australia's #1 female bodyboarding champion, Kira Llewellyn took on local FlowRider® gurus in the second round of heats on Saturday February 3, 2007. The semis and grand finals fell on February 9 to coincide with Screamworld, The After Dark Park.

The first final saw nine guys and girls battling it out bodyboard style, with some awesome moves executed by all competitors. The final results were Mark Quinlan on top, followed by Megan Humphries and Sam Morgan.

The second final pitched eight guys against the liquid treadmill proving those NightRider sessions have been paying off. The results of the Stand-up division were Jai West in first, then David Watson and Sheldon Paris.

To top it off, Dreamworld's FlowRider® A-Team showed their paces and battled for awesome prizes, including a trip for two to Kingfisher Bay Resort on Fraser Island for four nights. The night's overall Prince of the Pipe was team favorite David Lord, followed by Renee Graves and Nathan Dark.

Between the semi man-made waves at Superbank, and the man-made flow of the FlowRider®, Queensland really is a surfer's paradise. Should you find yourself in the land down under and want to go for the flow, check out their website at www.dreamworld.com.au.

BE COOL FOR YOUR SCHOOL

The Collegiate Nationals at Wave House® San Diego, CA – 4/24/2007
By Aaron Steele

In spring, a young flowboarder's fancy turns to the first competitive event of the season. On April 24, 2007, 80 competitors from eight southern California schools – as close as Point Loma and as far as Santa Barbara – met in swift collision at Wave House® San Diego for the 2007 Collegiate National Championships.

More than 1000 spectators showed up for the event, which was broadcast on College Sports TV and Channel 93.3 and sponsored by Powerade, AOL, BF Goodrich, Jack in the Box, Ghost Boards, Gotcha, Quiksilver, Rainbow Sandals, Zoo York, Body Glove, Royal Caribbean, and Sun Diego.

Manny Vargas and Peter Cufarro emceed the event, and did a fabulous job promoting and announcing. Chris Granone and crew judged and kept the pace of the event moving as swiftly as the hundred thousand gallons of water flowing at 25 MPH up and over the FlowBarrel® Bruticus Maximus.

A long day of competition concluded with an amazing final which featured an aerial dogfight between Derek Zemen and Tyler McIntyre. Although Tyler was the 2006 National Champion, the young upcoming college phenom Derek "Zoo" Zemen edged the veteran out on the first place podium. Crowning the winners were multi-gold X-games medalist Andy McDonald and Olympic Gold Medalist Jonny Moseley who are both experienced flowriders themselves and fans of the sport.

THE ANDY AND TONY SHOW

Hawk and MacDonald Demo the Bruticus at the LG Action Sports Tour Event at Wave House® San Diego.

From September 14-16, 2007, the LG Action Sports World Tour brought more than 50 of the world's best skaters, BMX riders, aggressive inline skaters and snowboarders to Wave House® San Diego, and set them up close to the FlowRider® and FlowBarrel® Bruticus Maximus.

Snowboarding? At the beach? The centerpiece of this event was a custom-made, first-quality half pipe that allowed all the wheeled fiends to go berserko. And for the S3 Supergirl Jam on Sunday, they ran a snowrail setup off the ramp for all the ladies.

To the live sounds of MXPX and The Donnas, the world's best action sports professionals got more air than the Space Shuttle and wowed a crowd of thousands. In between the ramp and the deep blue sea, flowboarding got into the act on Saturday afternoon with a demo by skateboard legends Tony Hawk and Andy MacDonald on the FlowBarrel® Bruticus Maximus.

Hawk and MacDonald (combined age 75) went out and showed their paces, busting aials frontside and backside, upside down and backward. During the session, Hawk sat with CBS Sports Spectacular's Jimmy Coleman and explained the wave, and how he rides it: "It's a little like snowboarding...but with snowboarding you are leaning forward on your front foot. This thing is all in your back foot and it's all real subtle. If you dig in too hard you bottom out and you're pretty much washed up."

Andy Mac went on to compete in the Skate Vert event on Saturday and took third, behind Brazil's Rodrigo Menezes in second and France's Pierre-Luc Gagnon in first.

They weren't kidding about the "World" part as Japan-man Takeshi Yasutoko took first in the Inline Vert competition, and England's Simon Tabron won the BMX Vert.

On Sunday, it was Lacey Baker winning the S3 Supergirl skate competition while Bev Villeumier was the standout in the snowboarding rail jam, winning the second of four sessions and scoring $2000 for the Supergirl Super Power Trick: a front-side 270°.

After the skate comp, Andy Mac cooled off on the B-Max and partied with friends to the sounds of 40 Oz to Freedom to cap a great weekend at Wave House®.

FLOWBOARDIN' USA

The 2007 Wave House® Flow Tour Rocked the USA

If everybody had a FlowRider®, across the USA... you'd catch them flowboarding' in the Poconos...

Sorry about that, but the truth is, there are 80+ FlowRider® sheet wave attractions across the USA and the 2007 Wave House® Flow Tour went to almost 20 of them.

The 2007 Wave House® Flow Tour began and ended at Wave House® San Diego. In between, the tour traveled as far west as Hawaiian Waters in Kapolei, Oahu and as far east as Adrenalina in Miami, Florida. To the deep south of Waterville in Gulf Shores, Alabama and up to the land of ice and snow, to Water Park of America in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and Kalahari Waterpark in Wisconsin Dells, Wisconsin.

Royal Caribbean International, along with Gotcha, Body Glove, Surfing Magazine, Ghost, WCB and Rainbow Sandals, made sure the winners were super stoked, and all competitors got cool gear.

At every event there were competitions held in Expert Bodyboard, Expert Stand-Up, Junior's Bodyboard, Junior's Stand-Up, Men's Bodyboard, Men's Stand-Up, Female Bodyboard, Female Stand-Up and Drop Knee.

The tour was filled with drama and excitement. The bridge collapsed in Minneapolis two days before the event there and President Bush was in town the same day as the event at Water Park of America. At Waterville, Alabama there were 100+ competitors in 100° heat and 100% humidity, for their first year. At Camelbeach there were thunderstorms shaking up the competitors, who had to run for cover.

At each Royal Caribbean-sponsored event, the winners were awarded tickets to San Diego to compete at the National Championships on September 21 - 22.

The 2007 Wave House® Flow Tour was the best yet, but the 2008 Wave Loch Flow Series will be over the top. Three regional AA-rated events in Minnesota, Utah and Pennsylvania will include concerts, and the best riders in the country scoring double points and a trip to the National Championships in San Diego to battle it out for a deluxe Royal Caribbean cruise and lots of other prizes. Check out all the 2008 Flow Series action presented by Royal Caribbean and sponsored by Gotcha at: www.wavetheplanet.com.

THE TRAVELERS

During the 2007 Wave House® Flow Tour, selected winners from each of the events were given roundtrip tickets to fly to San Diego for the National Championships at Wave House® San Diego in September. ## INSANE IN THE RAIN

The Flow Tour National Championships Blows Into Wave House® San Diego By Ben Marcus

After nearly five months, 13 states and hundreds of competitors from all over the globe, The Wave House® Flow Tour International Flowboarding Championships brought together the best of the best to compete at Wave House® San Diego over two days in nine divisions: Junior's Bodyboard Junior's Stand-up, Men's Bodyboard, Men's Stand-up, Female Bodyboard, Female Stand-up, Drop Knee, Expert Bodyboard, Expert Stand-up and Traveler's.

Presented by Royal Caribbean International, the winners of the Expert Bodyboard and Expert Stand-up divisions won seven-night Royal Caribbean cruise vacations for two on Freedom of the Seas or Liberty of the Seas - the only cruise ships in the world you can surf on. There wasn't much cruising going on at this event, which started on Friday.

In every heat, all riders took four runs of 45 seconds, and were judged by a panel of experts. The categories were: Use of Barrel (10%) Cutbacks/Sprays (10%) Switch (20%) Airs (40%) and Style (20%).

Competition highlights on the final day included Hayley Balderrama making it into the Drop Knee Division with three men, but there was no surprise when Tyler Danek dominated the Expert Bodyboard division.

Jamie Lovett made it into the final of the Men's Bodyboard division, but that, and really everything that happened that day was all fireworks leading up to the Grand Finale in the Expert Stand-up division between Greg Lazarus and Lovett.

Jeff Ranta and Tyler McIntyre pulled off moves in the Expert Stand-up final that would have been more than enough in any other heat, but this final had the two current superstars of flowboarding, and they went off. Greg Lazarus had to interrupt a run halfway through to switch out a broken board. He got back on the Bruticus and pulled off a one-legged backflip - which he calls the "Laz Flip."

Lovett countered with some insane runs that included a double backflip, and then Lazarus did one run strapless, throwing out a Superman air and then hanging five in the barrel, which sounds easy but is way harder than most people think.

Four runs each for all of the Expert Stand-up finalists, and in the end it was anyone's call between Lazarus and Lovett. Lovett got the nod and won a seven-day cruise from Royal Caribbean. But this was just the start of a beautiful rivalry between the South African and the Mexican. Jamie Lovett and Greg Lazarus are two guys who are launching flowboard moves into the stratosphere.

GET YOUR KICKS

Sean Silveira Shows How to Rip the Kickflip

Sean Silveira is a native of Orlando, Florida, and one of the local rogues blowing minds and pushing the limits on the FlowRider® in the Adrenalina store. The FlowRider® is like skateboarding on a wave because you can work on a trick over and over again until you get it wired. This isn't easy, Silveira says, but a solid kickflip lays a basic foundation for a whole repertoire of moves: "The kickflip is an advanced trick!" Silveira says: "Level highest. Safety is always a major concern. Focusing is probably the most important thing and not playing around in the FlowRider® or trying to perform a trick out of your skill level."

STEP 1: SETUP I usually do this trick in the middle of the wave heading down against the flow of the water, but you can do it near the bottom as well. Set up on the nose of the flowboard with right foot and left foot inward at a 45-degree angle, with your heel hanging slightly off board.

STEP 2: OLLIE As you are flowing up the water face prepare to pop and kick by bending your knees and doing an Ollie, which is popping the board off the water surface and kicking.

STEP 3: ROTATION While the board is rotating in the air, focus on catching the top of the flowboard with your feet and ride away clean.

More advanced variations of a kickflip are the varial flip, the switch flip, the backside flip, the switch backside flip and the 360 flip.

THIS IS HOW I ROLL

Tyler Danek Launches and Lands It

Mad skills, speed, and style: Tyler Danek is showing some Texas hospitality by sharing some of his techniques with bodyboarding flowboarders around the world: "This is an important core bodyboarding maneuver," Danek said. "and if you can master these, you will then be ready to move on and attempt one of the biggest bodyboarding tricks: the A.R.S. When you do these correctly and project out from the wave, the landings will bust your gut and shake the cobwebs out of your head."

STEP 1: SETUP Set yourself up in the barrel behind where the lip starts to pitch over.

STEP 2: BOTTOM-TURN Cut straight up about halfway up the face of the wave, then turn the nose of your board towards the jets and bottom-turn into the flats 2-3 feet. This is where you get your speed. The faster you hit the lip, the bigger and better your air roll will be.

STEP 3: APPROACH & LOCATION Turn your head over your shoulder and look at the section of the wave where the lip just starts pitching over. This is the spot you want to hit for this maneuver. At the same time dig your rail (left rail on a left break, right rail on a right). Keep your head turned and eyes focused on your spot, and keep your rail dug in.

STEP 4: TAKEOFF You don't want to roll your body at the top of the wave. If you come off the lip correctly the shape of the wave will roll you over. As you reach the lip, you want to be turning the nose of your board outward towards the jets. You will be almost upside down as you are doing this, and you turn the nose out like you are steering towards the jets. This step will project you and your board out away from the wave face and make your roll look better.

STEP 5: PREP FOR LANDING As you get completely rolled over you want to get your board back under you, stay flat on your board, keep your elbow in prone position and brace yourself for a gut-busting, hard landing. Hold on tight! You want to try to absorb the impact evenly between your elbow area, and the opposite side of the board where you hold it.

The more you do these the easier and more natural they will feel. You'll also get better at absorbing the landings the more you do them.

Air Reverse

270: An air with a 270 degree spin, normally with a grab.

270 to standup: A bodyboarding 270 landing standing up.

270 standup air: A 270 in which the rider switches to standup in the air and lands drop knee.

360: A full rotation through the air.

540: One and a half rotations through the air.

720: Two complete rotations in the air.

Acid Drop: Dropping in from the top of the ride structure, with your board in your hand and landing on it at the base of the wave to start the ride.

Aerial: A maneuver in which the rider leaves the ride surface and then returns – hopefully. AKA: air.

Air Roll: An air with a roll away from the face of the wave.

Air Forward (forward air): Forward spin in the air.

Air Reverse (reverse air): Reverse spin in the air.

Air Hubb: Forward spin in the air + forward roll in the air.

Air Reverse Hubb: Reverse spin in the air + invert roll in the air.

SEQUENCE: FRED POMPERMATER.

Backflip

Alley oop: Performing a trick in the opposite direction a flowboarder is moving.

ARS: Air Roll Spin, a bodyboarding move.

Backflip: A maneuver where the rider does an aerial, flips backward and lands it.

Backside: Stand up flowboarding with your back to the wave.

Barrel: Dropping back under the curl of the wave, getting as deep as possible.

Barrel roll (el rollo): A bodyboarding move in which the rider goes up with the lip of the wave and spins off the top, going over with the lip and landing at the bottom.

Body Varial: The body rotates 180 degrees while the board remains still.

Boneless: An air with a launch above the lip with a grab and fully extended legs and board.

Carve: To make a long, curving turn while flowboarding or bodyboarding.

Dk Roll: A full roll starting dropknee and landing dropknee.

Dk Rodeo Flip: A dropknee roll and semi spin, landing backwards on the wave.

Drop knee: Flowboarding a bodyboard on one knee on the FlowRider® or the FlowBarrel®.

Fakie: Riding the opposite end of the board forward: tail forward.

Grab: With one or both hands, grabbing either the inside or the outside rail. Can be done frontside or backside.

Gyroll: Air roll + front flip (somersault).

Gorf (forward or reverse): Completely clear the lip, point your nose down, then pull into a forward or reverse spin.

Heelflip: Pushing down on the edge of the board and flipping it over, while performing an Ollie. Done on the FlowRider®, rarely on the Bruticus Maximus.

Hubb: Forward spin + forward roll (on wave face or off lip).

Hubbcap: Forward spin + forward roll + forward spin (on wave face or off lip).

Huck: When a flowboarder flies into the air without attempting to land it.

Invert: This is an air in which you invert your body and board.

Invert roll (Reverse roll, Reverse El Rollo): Air off the lip + reverse roll in the air.

Judo Air: A backside air where the flowboarder takes his front foot off the board and kicks it forward and pulls the board backwards while the back foot is still on the board. Kicks aren't allowed in Judo, but whatever.

Kickflip: A flowboard move derived from skateboarding, in which a strapless rider uses toes to flip the board completely in the air and land back on the top.

Laz Flip: Invented by Greg Lazarus, this is a one-footed backflip. He takes his front foot out of the strap and kicks it out as he is upside-down in the air. Don't try this at home.

Lien Air: A basic aerial. Done frontside, the rider grabs the nose or heel edge with the front hand. Invented by Neil Bender, and Lien is Neil spelled backward.

Madonna: A one-footed lien to tail, where the front foot is taken off and kicked out straight down (behind the board), invented by Tony Hawk.

McTwist: An inverted 540 degree mute grabbed aerial, named after skateboarder Mike McGill.

Superman

Method: An aerial where the flowboarder's front hand grabs the heel edge, both knees are bent, and the board is pulled up behind the rider.

Mom Flip: A double backflip done switchfoot, a move innovated by Jamie Lovett and named for his mom.

Ollie: A no-handed air performed by tapping the tail of the board on the ground or ramp surface. Named after Alan Gelfend.

Rail slide: Flowing off the wave surface and sliding along hard surfaces.

Reverse ARS (invert ARS): Reverse roll + reverse spin in the air.

Reverse Hubb: Reverse spin + invert roll (on wave face or off lip).

Reverse Forward Hubb: Reverse spin + forward roll (on wave face or off lip).

Revert: To turn 180 after completing a trick but before coming completely down the wave.

Rodeo: A flip with a 180. Flipping while spinning. A maneuver from snowboarding, where a rider turns a frontside 180 through the air while completing an inverted 360 rotation for a total of 540. A rodeo 720 is when you turn frontside 360 while completing an inverted 360 rotation for a total of 720.

Rodeo Flip: Partially inverted 360 with a back flip.

Sexchange: A body varial with a shuvit in the opposite direction.

Shuvit: A Shuvit (or Shove-it, or Varial rotation) is a 180° spin of the board, as opposed to flipping the board.

Superman: An aerial where the rider grabs the board with both hands, takes his feet off the board and flies through the air for a moment, posing like the Man of Steel.

Switch stance: When a regular foot rides goofy foot or a goofy foot rides regular, the feet are placed in the opposite of the normal stance and you are going forward with a slightly different balance point than in your normal stance. Not the same as fakie where you ride backwards with your normal balance and stance.

Varial: In the middle of an aerial, spinning the board from backward to forward under your feet.

IS IT POSSIBLE TO FLOW AROUND THE WORLD?

WITH 100+ FLOWRIDER® FACILITIES WORLDWIDE YOU CAN. OR JUST BOOK A TRIP ON ANY ONE OF THE THREE FREEDOM-CLASS ROYAL CARIBBEAN CRUISE SHIPS EQUIPPED WITH A FLOWRIDER® IN THE STERN.

FLOWRIDER®S ARE EVERYWHERE, FROM AUSTRALIA TO ZOETERMEER, IN FACILITIES PUBLIC AND PRIVATE, CONNECTED TO LUXURY RESORTS AND INDOORS AT NATIONAL LEISURE AND PLEASURE CENTERS. THE WORLD IS CATCHING ON TO THE IDEA THAT THERE IS MORE TO LIFE THAN GOING HEADFIRST DOWN A WATERSLIDE.

AND THE MORE TO THAT LIFE IS THE FLOWRIDER®—WHICH BRINGS THE CHALLENGE AND FUN OF RIDING OCEAN WAVES TO DESERTS, MOUNTAINS, HOTELS AND WATERPARKS NEAR YOU.

AS OF THE SUMMER OF 2008, THERE WERE OVER 80 FLOWRIDER® SHEET WAVES IN TWO DOZEN COUNTRIES AND A DOZEN FLOWBARRELS® IN SIX COUNTRIES. AND THOSE NUMBERS ARE GROWING WEEK BY WEEK, MONTH BY MONTH, AS MORE PLACES IN THE WORLD CATCH ON TO THE GLOBAL COOLING MADE POSSIBLE BY WAVE LOCH®.

(Below) Tyler Daneek and Hayley Balderrama have taken the cruise twice. Tyler says: "We went to Haiti, Jamaica, Cozumel and Cayman. On this last cruise, Hayley and I were asked by some cule girls to help them ride since they rented the wave for a $200 private session. So that was fun, spending an hour helping four absolute hollies learn how to ride the FlowRider®." This isn't Tyler and Hayley getting hiltched.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE Flowing the Freedom Class

The Freedom of the Seas was launched from Turku, Finland in April of 2006 and the Liberty of the Seas took her maiden voyage a year later, in May of 2007. They are building a FlowRider® into the Independence of the Seas for a May, 2008 launching.

The FlowRider® is part of a pleasure package that includes the H2O Zone, cantilevered whirlpools, rock wall and ice skating rink. All of this while you are cruising through Caribbean waters, from one tropical island to the next.

Freedom and Liberty sail from Miami and cover the eastern and western Caribbean: San Juan, Puerto Rico; Charlotte Amalie, St. Thomas; Philipsburg, St. Maarten; Labadee, Haiti; Ocho Rios, Jamaica; George Town, Grand Cayman and Cozumel, Mexico.

Independence of the Seas launched in May of 2008 and will be home-ported in Europe through the summer, embarking on Mediterranean itineraries. In the fall she will sail 6- and 8-night Caribbean itineraries from Ft. Lauderdale.

The Freedom Class are the largest cruise ships in the world: 1,111 ½ feet long, 209 feet above the waterline, with 18 decks. Part of the 154,407 gross tonnage of the Freedom Class is the 35,000 gallons and 140 tons of water reservoir to provide the flow on the FlowRider®, which takes up a high position on the rear deck. The ships are propelled by six Wärtsilä 46 V12 diesels which generate 17,000 horsepower each. The FlowRider® is powered by two pumps generating 140 horsepower each.

Freedom-class ships cruise at a top speed of 24.9 MPH. The top speed of the FlowRider® is 20 MPH. Water water everywhere, and as the Freedom ships cruise to exotic locations, the FlowRider® flows along with it.

Next up for Royal Caribbean are the Genesis-class ships. Fifty per cent bigger and twice the flow with a FlowRider® Double. Check out:

RIDE THE BLACK PEARL Grand Cayman Island

Jonathan Root is a professional juggler, half of the juggling duo Team Rootberry (www.rootberry.com) who do a juggling comedy routine at colleges, corporate events, and on cruise ships.

Their act takes them to the Cayman Islands, a chain of three islands in the western Caribbean, between Cuba and Jamaica. On Grand Cayman, Jonathan Root and his son Cody double up on the FlowBarrel® at the Grand Harbor resort. The FlowBarrel® is part of the Black Pearl Skate Park, which is 56,000 square feet of prime skate territory, open free to the public and extremely popular with locals and the unending waves of visitors who come to the Cayman Islands to scuba dive, sailboard and do business.

Skating in the hot sun is sweaty business, so the Roots and a lot of others cool off in the FlowBarrel® at Black Pearl, a right-breaking wave that is equally popular with dad and lad: "It's a blast riding in Cayman," said Cody Root. "The park instructors are sweet since it came under new management. They let us ride doubles on the wave. We even rode triples: Jonathan and me stand-up with a friend on a bodyboard. They turn it to any level you want so if you only want to ride on 2 (50% power) you can but if you want to ride on 4 (100% power) you can. Before it went under new management the operators wouldn't let us do anything. She would only let me ride on 3 (70% power) a few times. The rest I had to ride on 2. They play music from rock to reggae-ton. When we are riding, a lot of tourists and locals will come out and watch us ride. Sometimes even the skateboarders in the park will stop and watch us ride, especially when dad is juggling."

If you are heading down to Grand Cayman, bring your skate and your flowboard. For more info, check out:

THUNDER DOWN UNDER Queensland's DreamWorld

Queensland, Australia is to the land down under what Florida is to America. Queensland is the tropical state, blessed with warm, sunny weather year around. Queensland's Gold Coast is similar to Orlando and Miami, Florida: the Gold Coast is renowned for its warm waters and beautiful beaches, like Miami. The skyline is filled with high rise hotels and apartments and, like Orlando, there are amusement parks and a million things to do for residents and tourists.

Located in Coomera, about halfway between Surfer's Paradise and Brisbane, DreamWorld is Australia's largest theme park, which features the Big Six Thrill Rides: The Claw, Cyclone, Giant Drop, Mick Doohan's Motocoaster, Tower of Terror and Wipeout, which is a Vekoma Waikiki Wave Super Flip, whatever that is. Dreamworld also has a FlowRider®, which the facility uses for competitions and public riding. Surfing is a national sport in Australia, and the action on the Dreamworld FlowRider® is as good as any in the world, with some of Australia's top surfers and bodyboarders bringing their moves from the semi-artificial SuperBank at Coolangatta, to the non-stop flow of the FlowRider®.

DreamWorld opened the WhiteWater World theme park right next door in 2006, and it has proved to be so popular, they are doing a massive expansion for the summer of 2008.

And no, we don't know if the water flows different because it's south of the equator. You will have to discover that for yourself.

FLOWRIDA Adrenalina Takes It Inside

Florida is surrounded by water on three sides, but there is a lot of water in the middle and we aren't talking about Okefenokee Swamp.

FlowRider® the sheet wave attraction is well represented in the state of Florida. Out on Florida's Panhandle, Pensacola Christian College has their own private FlowRider® Single for the rest and recreation of their students. The Tierra del Sol Resort in Orlando has a FlowRider® Double and the Spring Hill Resort and Waterpark has a FlowRider® Single and a Double and those are open to the public, and the public loves them.

Orlando is also home to the Adrenalina Store in the Florida Mall Orlando, which is home to the first of many indoor FlowRider®s in Adrenalina retail outlets around the country – and some day the world!

The Adrenalina Orlando store had its Grand Opening on December 8th, 2006, and held a competition which was won by Sean Silveira, to the tune of $2000 righteous bucks. Adrenalina Orlando also had a high school team contest in March of 2007, which was won by Boone High.

On December 24, 2007 Adrenalina opened another store in Miami and on February 24th they sponsored a Grand Opening Competition. The FlowRider® is a challenge that demands skills, and takes time. Good fun and good business as people flock to the store to watch the action and they buy stuff - lots of stuff.

The FlowRider®s at Orlando and Miami are proving to be so popular, Adrenalina is already constructing a Tampa store and they have projects started in Texas, Georgia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and across the USA. And every Adrenalina store comes with a prize inside: A FlowRider®!

AFLOWHA Hawaiian Waters, Oahu and Da Rush, Maui

Bringing artificial waves to the Hawaiian Islands sounds like bringing artificial snow to the Swiss Alps. But the truth is, FlowRider®s are as popular in Hawaii as they are anywhere else in the world.

Hawaiians love to ride waves: big waves, small waves, windy waves, sunny waves and even waves that flow at 20 MPH and go forever.

The FlowRider® Double at Hawaiian Waters on the west side of Oahu is called Da FlowRider. It opened in 2005 and has been going strong ever since. With thousands of Hawaiian locals and visitors riding the wave, joined by top surfers and bodyboarders like Jon Jon Florence, Ross Williams, Dave Boehne, Charlie Carroll, Pete Labrador and Luke Walsh.

On the island of Maui, the Kihei area is popular with humpback whales and surfers. It's now the home of Hawaii's second FlowRider®. Uncle Charlie Maxwell is partners with Bernie Vadla in Da Rush, Maui: "Da Rush Maui opened up in November 2007," Uncle Charlie said. "with a 'Big Splash' on this island where the He'e Nalu (surfing) is king. Maui is the home of the big wave spot some call 'Jaws' but others know by its Hawaiian name Pe'ahi (to beckon). Riders like Archie Kalepa, and David Kalama are towed in with a jet ski to catch 60 foot plus foot waves.

"Archie and the lifeguards of Kihei work for Da Rush and have become expert riders on Maui's FlowRider®. It has attracted Clyde Aikau, a big wave rider from Oahu who is Eddie Aikau's brother and Uncle Charlie's cousin. Rush Randall was one of the pioneers of flowboarding and a top competitor on the SWATCH Wave Tour in the 1990s. Rush is a Maui guy and he came by to show us a few new tricks.

We see the sport of flowriding as a natural progression to the spirit of these islands. Surfing is a natural thing here and the FlowRider® is a good substitute when the ocean is flat with no waves and surfing at Da Rush can go on even when the sun sets on our mystical aina (land)."

Going to Hawaii to get some waves? Try da kine that stay go!

[Clockwise from left] Dutch Water Dreams has three doubles, no waiting and the Dutch stay sane by riding them in funny ways. Here we have two on one and one on two. Three people riding two boards, and one guy riding three boards. Well maybe they aren't entirely sane, but they are having fun. Photos courtesy Dutch Water Dreams.

TRIPLE DOUBLE Dutch Water Dreams, the Netherlands

Winters are long in the low countries and the Netherlands are low, so low that it's the only European country with an indoor ski slope. That is pretty flat. The Netherlands are also called Holland, which is mostly incorrect, as only two of the many provinces have that name. Zoetermeer (Sweet Lake) is a city in the province of South Holland, a young city that has been growing since 1970. The people of Zoetermeer take their sports seriously, which is why it is home to the SnowWorld indoor ski park, the SilverDome indoor ice skating rink and Dutch Water Dreams. The primary purpose of this facility is an artificial Olympic wild water rafting circuit, almost identical to the course in China for the 2008 Olympic Games. But a city that can have an indoor ski slope can have anything it wants, and the Dutch people of Zoetermeer wanted not one, not two but three FlowRider® doubles.

Closer to Amsterdam, the Centre Parcs de Eemhof has a FlowRider® Double in it's Aqua Mundo indoor waterpark. This is a heated, tropical jungle under glass that takes people away from the ice and snow for a while and transports them to Bali or somewhere close to the equator.

Winters are long, and you can imagine that all four of Hollands FlowRider®s are popular from the long nights of winters and into the summer.

DEUTSCHLAND FLOW Borkum-Gezeitenland & Alpamare

Wave pools and artificial waves go way back in Germany, to 1929, when "Indoor Surfers" caught a little bit of flow rush in huge municipal pools in Berlin and Munich that were outfitted with wave agitators. These weren't waves for riding necessarily, although some kids did manage to bodysurf little indoor combers in the shallow end.

According to Oliver Nolden, who runs the www.epicsurf.de website in Deutschland: "Borkum is the most westly German island in the North Sea, right at the border to the Netherlands. You get there by boat after a three-hour ride with the standard ferry, or one hour by a fast catamaran. People are surfing there from time to time, but there is no surfing scene like on the next island to the east - which is called Norderney. There are people coming to the island just because of the FlowRider®. In that waterpark 'Gezeitenland' it's the only big attraction for young people, because they are more focused on health and wellness needs of the older visitors."

The Borkum FlowRider® is popular because it is one of the only two FlowRider®s in Germany. The other one is located at the Alpamare water park in Bad Tölz, at the southern border of Germany about an hour from Munich.

Bad Tölz sounds like a German heavy metal band or something—or the wrong entry to the Autobahn—but in English it means the "Baths of Tölz." Alpamare is also a health spa and a water park which features a FlowRider® Double. Some of Alpamare is outside and some is inside. The FlowRider® is inside, which gives Germans a chance to strip to their shorts and bathing suits and get crazy: all year long.

ISLANDS IN THE FLOW Ireland and Jersey Island

Wave pools have a history in the United Kingdom going back as far as 1935, when the municipal pool in Wembley, England was equipped with agitators. These weren't waves for riding necessarily, but this was still a large-scale wavepool. More than 70 years later the United Kingdom is home to Wave Loch sheet wave attractions in Ireland and Jersey Island. Meanwhile, stay tuned to Wembley, where big things are planned.

BIG EIRE: FLOWBOARDING IN IRELAND

Ireland's National Aquatic Centre in Dublin looks pretty sweet, and must be oh so popular during those rare days when the Irish weather is rainy or gloomy. Rob Whelan of the NAC said: "The FlowRider® was installed five years ago when the National Aquatic Centre opened. It is very popular in the AquaZone, which is the indoor fun park. FlowRider® offers the fun and excitement of surfing, skateboarding and snowboarding in one truly interactive ride. The FlowRider® is ideal for family participants of all ages."

It costs 14 euros to get into the NAC which allows unlimited use of all the rides. According to Mr. Whelan, the National Aquatic Centre is the third most popular paying attraction in Ireland. Finishing after, we would imagine, the Guinness factory and the home of Bono.

WAVES? IN JERSEY?

The Island of Jersey is a place many people have never heard of. It is the largest of the Channel Islands, which lie between France and England in the English Channel. Jersey is closer to France geographically but closer to England culturally. Blessed with a temperate, sunny climate Jersey is also a center of banking and finance - the UK version of the Cayman Islands: a holiday place with good weather, where businessmen go to wheel and deal, and bring their families.

In the spring of 2008, the Merton Hotel on Jersey added a FlowRider® Double to its facilities, and added a new characteristic to the Channel Islands: consistent surf. The Flowrider® is only available to guests of the Merton Hotel (or their two other hotels in Jersey) plus members of the Merton Leisure Club. According to Robert MacKenzie, our man at the Merton: "The FlowRider® is well and truly up and running with daily sessions. We have had a very good reaction from everyone and lots of demand for local membership to the Club and for corporate events. We are confident that it will draw new visitors to the hotel, and clips are already appearing on YouTube. It must be having an impact given that it is the only hotel in Europe with a FlowRider®!"

Wave Loch® has plans for Wembley and the rest of Europe but if you are flying between the UK and the Continent and want to take a ride, Jersey is happening right now.

FLOWRIDERS OF ARABIA

Wild Wadi, Jumeirah Beach, Dubai, U.A.E

Dubai is so hot right now. This Emirate on the shores of the Persian Gulf is making a serious play to become one of the finance and sporting centers of the world.

Dubai is an oasis of security, peace and prosperity in a troubled world. To visit Dubai is to feel like you are visiting another planet, where wealth flows from the ground and the construction projects are out of this world.

When the people of Dubai need islands, they build them: in the shapes of palm trees, or the world. You really have to see it to believe it.

Dubai is at sea level, at 25° south latitude, but when the people of Dubai wanted to go skiing and be home in time for dinner, they built a self-contained, refrigerated ski mountain in the middle of the desert.

Dubai is hot in other ways. The highest temperature ever recorded there was 117°. Sometimes the ocean is too warm for swimming. And the Wild Wadi Water-park at Jumeirah Beach cools the 1.75 million gallons of water that flow through their attractions, making the park one of the coolest attractions in the Emirate.

Dubai hasn't installed artificial swell machines to wrap waves around those artificial islands - yet - so when Dubai locals and visitors feel the need to flow, they go for the Wipeout and Riptide FlowRider®s. All of this goes off in the shadow of the Burj al Arab - the tallest hotel in the world. Dubai is all about going big, and the flowboarding there is done in that spirit. Look for even bigger things, coming soon.

FLOREA Korea, Japan and Saipan with the Flowrider Mania Club

Introducing the Korean FlowRider® Club. Since its founding in 2004, the FlowRider® Mania Club has climbed to 600 FlowRider® maniacs. Andy Yoon and crew have established flowboarding as Korea's newest sport: "On January 23rd, 2008, our flowrider.co.kr website opened up," Yoon said. "and every day there are photo shots, videos of how to flowboard, and other information and news regarding FlowRider®."

Currently, there are three FlowRider®s installed in three aquaparks in Korea: At Yong-in is Caribbean Bay which opened as Korea's largest waterpark in 1996. Its theme portrays Central America's Caribbean, with a touch of Hispanic atmosphere, which has become the most popular waterpark among the Koreans. The FlowRider® is installed outdoors, and is open from the end of May to the middle of September.

Only bodyboards can be used at this park, but during the peak period, there are so many people that the average waiting time in the line is from 40 minutes to one hour. This waterpark holds the #1 world rank for the most number of visitors every day: 23,000.

At Chun-ahn is Sang-lok Aquapia. This park opened in 1998 and is enjoyed all season round since the FlowRider® is installed indoors. Only bodyboards are allowed.

At Dae-chun is Legrand Fun Beach, which opened in 2007. This is an indoor waterpark, which has the newer model FlowRider® for flowboards and bodyboards and is open from May to the end of September.

Two more FlowRider®s are due to be opened soon. One in Young-ju at Fantasion Resort which is speculated to open this summer of 2008. And another one in Jang-am – the Jang-am Waterpark – which is to be opened some time in 2009.

The Fantasion Resort waterpark will be installing the double FlowRider® indoors. One of the good points about this waterpark is that both flowboard and bodyboard can be used all season long and of course this is great news for the FlowRider® maniacs who have been thirsty for more FlowRider®s.

This year, Caribbean Bay, under the sponsorship of Saipan PIC, will be holding the second annual PIC Point Break FlowRider® Competition. "It is a great thing," Andy Yoon said. "The first annual event was such a success for everyone involved. This year, many more FlowRider® Maniacs are bound to participate!"

For this second year of competition, many of the staff of flowrider.co.kr will be helping out with the competition and it will be quite an important function for the club: "Our community club's plan is to one day open an 'Asian FlowRider® Competition' by gradually broadening our activities into other Asian countries," Yoon said. "Hosting the 'Asian FlowRider® Competition' is also one of the plans for the Fantasion Resort in Young-ju."

INDOOR/OUTDOOR USA FLOWBOARDING ACROSS THE COUNTRY

Twenty-one out of 50 of the United States have a FlowRider® or FlowBarrel® or some other Wave Loch® sheet wave attraction.

If you don't live in one of those states, you might want to consider moving.

Or, you might want to stay where you are and hope for the best. The popularity of flowboarding is spreading like a cool breeze across a world that is heating up in more ways than one, and is looking for ways to chill out.

If the present pace continues, it won't be long until someone builds a flow wave in your neighborhood, and you can do the tricks the surfers and skaters and snowboarders and wakeboarders do, on the wave sensation that is sweeping the nation like a fun tsunami.

ONLY IN OGDEN, UTAH... IT'S

FLOWRIDER WITH ATTITUDE!

It's the ULTIMATE HIGH ADVENTURE CENTER featuring Flowrider and a whole lot more! You get the fun and excitement of Flowrider in addition to: iFly indoor skydiving, iRock indoor rock climbing, restaurants, bowling, billiards and much more!

It's Flowrider with ATTITUDE!

SURF the mountains

AUGUST 30TH:
AA-RATED FLOWSERIES CONTEST!
LAST EVENT BEFORE THE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

CAMELBEACH

SURF THE FLOWCONOS

In the summertime when the weather is hot, people sweltering in New York City, Long Island, northern New Jersey and Philadelphia are torn between two escapes: Head for the hills, or flee to the sea. Both options are appealing, because the ocean is nice and you can catch bluefish and go surfing, but the mountains are cool too, because you can fish for trout and go surfing.

Surfing? In the mountains? Oh you betcha: The Flowconos.

Camelbeach is a summertime waterpark built at the base of a wintertime ski and snowboard area, and it is the best of both worlds for the steaming masses, yearning to beat the heat. Camelbeach is a world class water park, 30 acres of the biggest thrills nestled at the base of Camelback Mountain. The park is surrounded by deciduous hardwoods, but every summer, they put up 300 palm trees to bring a bit of the tropics to the Poconos.

Camelbeach is a water wonderland, with every kind of H2O thrill you can imagine. The Checkered Flag Challenge is an eight-lane waterslide that allows the whole family to race for the bottom. The Triple Venom is a six-story speed slide built into the side of the ski hill. The Vortex and Spin Cycle are bowl slides which challenge riders to see how many revolutions they can make before getting flung out. The Kahuna Lagoon wave pool makes waves up to four feet and lets people body Surf the Mountains, which is the Camelbeach motto.

Fun fun fun, but the people who come to Camelbeach have an unquenchable thirst for fun and they demand the cutting edge in waterpark rides. In 2006, Camelbeach installed a FlowRider® Double, and it very quickly became one of the most popular rides in the entire park. So popular, that since 2006, Camelbeach has been one of the stops on the summer Flow Series.

For the 2008 Flow Series, Camelbeach will be one of three AA-rated events. On August 30, local competitors and travelers from as far away as California will meet for competition on the FlowRider® Double. The flowboarding contest will be the centerpiece of a long weekend of music, partying, mingling and adrenaline.

So when the dog days of August come around and you are sweating bullets and making that ocean or mountain decision: Head for the hills and check out the best flowboarders in the world surfing the mountains.

JACK ATTACK

Backwash

When MTV's TRL came to Wave House® San Diego in the summer of 2006, Jack Black was cruising the Mission Beach boardwalk on his cruiser chopped cycle, and came in to make a grand entrance and say 'Whatsup?!?!'

Jack Black is so hot right now and he chose to cool off by having a go on the FlowBarrel® Bruticus Maximus. Like everything Jack Black does, he made it funny, and took a pummeling that Nacho Libre would have appreciated. Frame grabs by Robert Campbell, from the MTV Summer Sizzle show.
